only his fourth full two-year term, received 859 votes. He, too, was elected to fill out a portion of an unexpired term in a special election in 1969.

Political newcomer H.O. Sammons, making his first bid for public office, tallied 192 votes. He is a retired contractor who has made his home in Corsicana for the past eight years.

In leading the ticket, Carlock carried seven of the nine voting boxes, the exceptions being Pct. 4, the Courthouse, where Stroube was the top vote-getter by a three vote margin, 80 to 77, and 1B, the School Administration Building, which Stroube carried 140 to 132.

There were 12 write-in votes tabulated. Robert M. Scott II, a former City Commissioner, received three write-ins. Getting one write-in each were Foley Wynn, Charles Nicholson, Don Bowen, Sidney Polk, Wayne Powell, George Willis, Ralph Scoggins, Jessie Files and Melvin Byrd.

Mayor Sue Youngblood's attempt Tuesday afternoon to lead the City Commission into openly considering termination of the city's contract with City Judge Fred Upchurch stalled when Stroube, running for his fifth term but the council voted 3-2 in favor of discussing the matter in an executive

> Mayor Youngblood and councilman John Carlock voted "no" on the motion by Commissioner P.D. Fullwood. No time or date was set for an executive

"I can't see what would be accomplished at a closed meeting," the mayor said when Fullwood first motioned for an executive session. "As long as I am conducting this meeting and I am responsible for putting this item on the agenda, I'm going to speak out." Judge Upchurch became an issue with the Mayor, she said, since recent events have indicated "he has not conducted himself in the manner of a judge." She specifically pointed to Upchurch's arrest in February on a charge of driving while intoxicated and for failure to drive in a single marked lane.

He has also been guilty of "illegal appointments," she said, in those instances in which he has appointed attorney Bill McKie to serve in his place as city judge.

Upchurch entered a plea of nolo contendere on the DWI charge March 27 before the county court and was fined $100 plus costs. He has since filed a motion asking for a new trial on the

"There has been no disposition" on the second ticket, Mayor Youngblood said, another example leading to what she claimed had become "a mandate from the people" to remove the judge.

Reading from the City Charter regarding the type of actions allowable by the council in closed sessions, she noted that "we can't vote in executive sessions, so how can we vote if we wanted to remove him?" She added later that she has "a strong belief that he (Upchurch) is dismissing tickets issued by the officer who arrested him."

Immediately after the council had recessed, the mayor produced three tickets dismissed by Upchurch and bearing the name of the arresting officer, Neal Baggett.

Fullwood contended throughout the Mayor's remarks that the item was a personnel matter and "belongs in an executive session where we can hear both sides." Councilmen Bob Scott and H.R. Stroube, Jr., agreed and eventually supported Fullwood's motion.

Commissioner Carlock momentarily led the discussion onto a broader plane when he brought up the case of a Corsicana policeman who was arrested last year on a DWI charge, asking Fullwood what steps he would have recommended in that case.

"It's the same deal," Fullwood replied, although the matter never came up before the council. The officer, Lewis Palos, resigned from the force a few days after he was ticketed. He still belongs to the Police Reserves. Mayor Youngblood said after the meeting she was prepared to present Palos's signed resignation from the Reserves—a copy of which she showed to a Daily Sun reporter—had the Commission chosen to make an issue of the point.

She also stressed that the remarks before the Commission were her own and not intended as an expression of the council's feelings on the matter. The mayor had spoken with Upchurch on two occasions, she said, and his refusal to resign—"I've got a contract," she claimed he told her—prompted her to put the item on the agenda.

Rev. George Willis, appearing before the council after all official business had been conducted, expressed hopes that the executive session considering Upchurch would lead to the man's

"There seems to be a clear case of prejudice in the amount of fines levied against Mexican-Americans and Blacks" by Judge Upchurch, he told the council. "The people that I represent, the minority people of this city, are sick and tired of discrepancies made on the basis of race in this courtroom." Asked by Stroube for copies of records regarding Upchurch's conduct of his court which Willis said he had collected, the minister replied that the council already has access to court records, "the official documentations," which would show evidence of "prejudice in Judge Upchurch's courtroom."

DAWSON—The blood-soaked body of a 52-year-old Waco man was found lying in the back end of his station wagon parked on a seldom-traveled dirt road this morning. A 16-gauge shotgun was clutched in his left hand and $208 was in his wallet, according to investigating Navarro County Sheriff's Deputy Harold

Pct. I, Place 2 Justice of the Peace Aubrey Smith this morning ruled "death by gunshot wounds, probably selfinflicted" in the death of William Raymond Foster, whose address was listed as 1119 Parkdale Drive, Waco. Smith said an autopsy has not been requested in the case.

Deputy Pitts said the body was found about 7 a.m. today by Ronnie Chasteen of Dawson, who was on his way to work building fences. The body was on a mattress in the back of the station wagon parked on a dirt road about 2.5 miles southeast of Dawson and about one-half mile off FM 709. Chasteen contacted the deputy's wife in Dawson and Pitts arrived at the scene at about 7:20 p.m.

According to Pitts, the bullet fired from the 16 gauge shotgun struck the man in the face. Pitts said he could not tell how long the man had been dead

Harold Dobecka, parade chairman, told the committee that at the present time things are "looking good" concerning the parade. He also said he will have a list of the parade participants by April 15, the deadline for entries.

Jack McKay reported he has secured Dallas Banker and Civic Leader R. L. Thornton, Jr. as parade marshal and related how Thornton's father always referred to himself as a resident of "Heelstring" (present-day Bristol). McKay also informed the committee of the city's compliance with the request to block off a portion of the downtown area for the parade and on the Centennial Committee's willingness to pay half the cost for the trophies for this year's winning floats, bands and horse

The committee passed a resolution stating its opposition to any attempts to commercialize the festival. This matter arose when McKay told the members of a request from Rev. Harold King of St. Paul's Baptist Church to stage a carnival during the festival.

In past years, the city has given the steering committee the final say-so on matters such as this, and the committee voted to send their president before the city officials to request a similar power this year and every year in order to keep the Ennis Polka Festival a homeoriented affair.

DAWSON-Royce Donald Raley received 72 write-in votes as opposed to Dan Griffin's 13 and one for Norman Summers to gain election to the post of mayor of this "Golden Circle" town.

Also from the total voter turn-out of 87 voters, Clyde Roloff and Bryant Merrell each received 82 votes to be selected as city commissioners.

Others receiving votes for the city council were Bobby Thompson, James Martin, Fred Cole, Almer Renfro, B.D. Hubbard and Charles Johnson, who each received one vote.

Will Give Access; What Will It Take? Geologically, Pisgah Ridge is almost 75 miles of limestone fault. A large section of it has settled, separating Pisgah from Tehuacana which is at the southern tip of the fault. An oldtimer of Groesbeck claims that the ridge was the main highway between north-central Texas and San Antonio and that it was possible for wagons to travel in an

The ridge provided a stone ford of Richland Creek, Tolbert has written, and by following the fault southward wagon trains could reach the Falls of the Brazos near Marlin, the only rockbottom crossing of the River of the Arms of God between Waco and the Gulf of Mexico. Even bigger trove is found. Blacklidge recalls the day in his boyhood when he found several old rifles in a cave under the ridge that he was clearing of scrap Historically, the ridge has been mapped as early as 1834 and perhaps earlier. The 1834 date is firm because former Dallasite T.F. (Tommy) Larkin, owner of one of the larger ranches along the ridge, has the original grant papers, the Latham tract, which shows the land as part of Coahuila, Mexico, one of the northern frontier states of that nation. Shopping centers and lookalike ranchstyle homes may still be years away from the ridge, but all the signs point to the certainty of it. Tolbert expressed his affection for the area when he wrote that "you're glad that wide concrete layers haven't laid on the narrow crest of this rocky ridge between the Trinity and the

ANTONIO—Airman Robert R. Nolen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Nolen, Sr., 613 N. 3rd St., Corsicana, has completed his U.S. Air Force basic training at the Air Training Command's Lackland AFB, Tex. He has been assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill., for training in aircraft maintenance. Airman Nolen is a 1971 graduate of Corsicana High School.

Alvas Gillespie

USS COOK—A distress signal was received by the radio room about the same time lookouts sighted a column of black smoke on the Caribbean horizon. Brazilian freighter had exploded, was afire and was going down, and the Navy's newest destroyer escort, the USS Cook, with Petty Officer First Class Alvas C. Gillespie, husband of the former Pearlie B. Polk of Rt. 3, Kerens, aboard, sliced through the tropical waters to conduct her first search and rescue operation commissioning December.

When his ship arrived on scene the burning hulk had been abandoned and the crew picked up by a Swedish ship which was nearby at the time of the explosion. The Cook dispatched a medical team to board the Swede and care for the injured. Brazilian crewmen stood by the blazing freighter for hours in case any crew had been left aborad.

The injured had been cared for and nothing more could be done, homeport at Long Beach, Calif. Training Center in Great Lakes.

Brookshire's has been lowering meat prices for the past two weeks.

This has been due to a decrease in the cost of meats. We are very proud to pass this and all savings on to our customers! We guarantee our customers that we will not raise any retail meat prices for the next thirty days. We will not be satisfied just to freeze our prices-but we will continue to lower our prices on meats as cost permits. We at Brookshire's are happy to announce the lowering of meat prices!
